

STOCKHOLDERS OF HEEL FIRM OFFERED STOCK

New Company Will Reorganize And Give Old Stockholders First Opportunity.

Persons who hold the $119,000 worth of the original capital stock of the Sure Foot Heel and Rubber Company, North Washington street, will have first opportunity to purchase stock in the new reorganized company.

This is the announcement today of Roy P. Funkhouser, Gettysburg, manager of the concern, which was purchased by his brother, R. J. Funkhouser, Hagerstown, Saturday afternoon, at a receiver's sale, for $24,300. Roy P. Funkhouser, who has been receiver and manager of the plant for the past two months, will continue as manager.

Reorganization

Announcement is made that a complete reorganization of the company will be effected. A new issue of stock will be floated, according to Mr. Funkhouser, the exact amount of which he was not able to divulge today, although he stated that it would be far in excess of the $150,000 capitalization of the old concern.

"Stockholders of the concern before the receiver's sale, Saturday," Mr. Funkhouser said, "hold almost $120,000 worth of the capital stock of the firm, and these persons, living in Pennsylvania and Maryland, will be given first opportunity to purchase shares in the new and reorganized rubber heel concern. The par value of shares will be $100."

To Increase Output

Mr. Funkhouser today said E. H. Nichols and R. J. Bowers, efficiency experts of Hagerstown, are going over the plant, making suggestions for increased output of rubber heels. When they are finished, and their recommendations approved, machinery will be added and the plant operated on a larger scale than heretofore. The present daily output of rubber heels is between 7,000 and 10,000 pairs, said Mr. Funkhouser.

After new machinery has been added and improvements and refinements in operation instituted, it is hoped by Manager Funkhouser to be able to turn out between 25,000 and 35,000 pairs of heels every working day.

Nation-Wide Activity

At present, the company is catering to several shoe manufacturing concerns, which are taking almost the entire output. It is planned to add several other large shoe manufacturers to the present list, the manager stated, adding that in addition efforts are being made to have a nation-wide chain of stores take over part of the heels turned out.

The name, Sure Foot Heel and Rubber Company, will be retained, according to Manager Funkhouser.

Stockholders under the old management, which passed out of existence with the sale Saturday, never received a dividend from the company, all earnings being put back into the business. With the sale of the company, their stock becomes valueless, according to Manager Funkhouser, in view of the fact that an entire new issue of common stock will be placed on the market.

R. J. Funkhouser, who bought the company at the receiver's sale, is president of five stone and two blast companies, located in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Vermont and Tennessee. The seven concerns are said to have a value of $1,500,000, and have declared regular dividends, according to Mr. Funkhouser.

$30,000 Liabilities

The proceeds of the sale Saturday, when the company was sold as "a going concern," do not quite meet the liabilities of the old management, which are said by Manager Funkhouser to be in the neighborhood of $30,000, including the expenses of the receivership. The difference between the sale price and the amount of the obligations will be borne by the new owner, it was stated.

ELECTION TIE SETTLED, FOX WINS DRAWING

Emory Fox, Democrat, was "elected" a member of the Cumberland township school board on Saturday night. Fox and Clarence Keckler, Republican, were tied at 209 votes each in the recent general election, and the question of who should be seated as a member of the school board was left to a drawing, which took place Saturday evening at the Lincoln Trust Company here.

John W. Black, secretary of the Cumberland township school board, put two slips of paper, each containing the name of one of the two candidates, in a coat pocket, from which he drew the slip bearing Mr. Fox's name.

George Plontz, Republican, was elected as the second member of the school board, having secured 225 votes in the recent election. John Schwartz, Democrat, was low man among four candidates, having secured 198 votes.

STATE PLAYERS WIN NEW LAURELS HERE SATURDAY

Oliver D. Anderson Stars As "Tommy Tucker" In "The First Year."

Townpeople and college students paid tribute to the Penn State players Saturday night in Brua Chapel by their presence and their plaudits, when the visiting members of the Penn State College Dramatic Club presented a comic tragedy of married life "The First Year," in three acts.

Presentation of the play was heralded as a comedy of unusual merits and the members of the cast were said to comprise the best talent at State College. All advance predictions were turned into realities and the capacity audience that greeted the players extended them a rousing welcome.

In Miss Mabel J. Reed as Grace Livingston and Oliver A. Anderson as Thomas Tucker, State College lays claims to two of the best players in the Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Dramatic Association. Both played to their usual standard and on more than one occasion "stopped the show." Their portrayals of the difficult roles assigned them was undoubtedly the best ever seen here.

Anderson Is Star

Anderson deserves the credit for the success of the presentation. He was a real "Tommy Tucker" and his work overshadowed all efforts of the other members of the cast, although it was a well-balanced list and each member played his or her part for new laurels.

Anderson reached his peak in character acting in the second act when he essayed to portray the actions of a man under the influence of "Missouri Mule" after his wife had fled from his home "to her mother." In this bit of acting Anderson "brought down the house." He revelled in the glory of his business ability, although heart-broken because of his wife's departure and gradually succumbing to the influence of "good gin."

Anderson was good. He was better than that. He was perfect in every sense of the word and his co-star, Miss Reed, fulfilled the expectations of even the most critical. Her portrayal of a disgraced wife found much response from the well-filled chapel and new laurels were heaped upon her already crowded crown of past achievements.

A Grouchy Dad

Nelson D. Zimmerman, as Mr. Livingston, a peculiar, set and rather grouchy father of Grace, was another member who came in for a goodly share of the plaudits. Zimmerman was the source of many humorous scenes and his unrelenting disposition together with his characterization of a grouchy "dad" brought forth considerable applause.

Miss Anna Garber as "Hattie" the colored maid furnished many amusing and "colorful" scenes. She had a difficult role to portray and she executed the various feats in a manner deserving of considerable mention.

Joseph Mathes, as Doctor Anderson; Miss Gertrude A. Smiley, as Mrs. Livingston, and Francis J. Kratz, as Dick Loring, were other members of the cast who generously and ably supported the stars.

The Cast

Grace Livingston, Mabel J. Reed; Mr. Livingston, Nelson D. Zimmerman; Mrs. Livingston, Gertrude A. Smiley; Doctor Anderson, Joseph Mathes; Dick Loring, Francis J. Kratz; Thomas Tucker, Oliver A. Anderson; Hattie, Anna Garber; Mr. Barstow, R. K. Elder; Mrs. Barstow, Ruth E. Warner; alternate in all male roles, Thomas F. Lane; alternate in all female roles, Dorothy Musser.

Act 1. Training quarters—at the Livingston home, Bellwood, Illinois.

Act 2. The Ringside—at Tommy's apartment, Joplin, Mo.

Act 3. The Knockout—at the Livingston home.

The play was coached and staged by Arthur C. Cloetingh.

STOCK REPORT

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Nov. 16.—Initial price changes in the stock market today were narrow and conflicting. Trading generally presented the same characteristics which prevailed at the close of last week with buying support appearing for rail shares, while profit taking proceeded in the high priced motors and specialties. Expensive selling of motor shares later caused the whole market to decline at a rapid pace. Chrysler broke twelve points to 200 which compares with the recent high of 253. Call money opened at four and one half per cent.

Mrs. Maude Wierman Kennedy, York Springs, was re-elected president of the Republican Women's Club of Adams county, at an enthusiastic meeting at Republican headquarters here, Saturday afternoon. Other officers elected were Mrs. Harry H. Thomas, York street, first vice president; Mrs. J. Price Oyler, York street, second vice president; Mrs. Ralph Wierman, Baltimore street, secretary, and Mrs. J. L. Kendehear, West Middle street, treasurer.

Under the topic, "Echoes from the Election," nearly every one of the members gave interesting accounts of the balloting in their districts.

Reports on the convention of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women held at Harrisburg last week were given by delegates and members who attended.

Miss Mary McConaughy, Gettysburg, was chairman of the nominating committee.

THE COURT HOUSE CLOCK

It doesn't make any difference what part of the day it is; it doesn't make any difference where you are in Gettysburg, how much you have to do, or where you are going, it's only twenty-five minutes after nine o'clock, a. m. or p. m., just as you will have it.

If you doubt the truth of the above statement, look at the clock in the belfry of the court house.

From time—well a pretty long time ago—the hour and minute hands of the court house clock have failed to function. They are so ashamed of themselves that they have their hands over their face.

There was a time when some folks said the huge clock was an Italian clock—how come?—if you looked at it long enough you would see the "da(y)-go past." But not so now; the hands have remained in the same position so long, they are said to be frozen fast.

Not only is the clock a "stand-pat" affair, but it is so dirty that it is difficult to distinguish whether it is a clock or a memorial tablet resting up there—so high. It's away above Gettysburg, but it is also way behind.

NEW MAJESTIC THEATRE OPENS TO LARGE CROWD

Amusement House Is Revelation to Gettysburg and Adams Countians.

Fifteen hundred persons of Gettysburg and Adams county were guests of the new Majestic Theatre at the opening performances Saturday night, most of them viewing for the first time Gettysburg's newest playhouse, by far the most elaborate and complete. Opinion was unanimous that the promise of the owners in constructing and the theatre management, that in operating they would provide "refined entertainment, delightful music amid pleasant environment," had been fulfilled.

The doors of the new theatre opened at six o'clock and little time was taken by patrons to fill the playhouse. Until six-thirty, the time of starting, those seated and the less fortunate who came shortly after the doors opened studied from their respective points of vantage the decorating scheme carried out in combinations consistent with the ornamental work. The pipe organ chambers and side walls are paneled with additional medallions and stencil work. The chairs were upholstered and comfortable and the lights consisting of big ceiling fixtures, a pyramid fixture at each organ chamber, and softly shaded wall brackets aided considerably in producing the delightful tone of the environment. In the balcony all the aisles with small fixtures attached to the seats were lighted during the performance. The lighting in the lobby, as in the theatre, carried out a brilliant warmth by the use of canary gold lamps.

Luxuriously Furnished

Entering into the lobby one sunk deeply in the heavy carpet which continues from the lobby into the foyer and aisles of the theatre auditorium. In the rear a beautifully lighted drinking fountain was observed while to the right of this was an attractively decorated and furnished ladies parlor. The Higgins Amusement Company, lessees of the theatre, were recipients of many basket bouquets of flowers which were on display in the lobby. Some were from local people while others were from supply houses and producers.

Promptly at six-thirty the lights on the stage were thrown on—in this particular case the amber concert lights, which blended with the silk drapery screen set.

LOCAL TROOPER RAIDS CRAP GAME

Corporal Kasparvich Leads Detail of State Police in Raid on Crap Game, Near York; 16 Arrested.

Corporal Kasparvich, formerly in charge of the sub-station of state police here, led a detail of troopers to a small shanty near the Jewish cemetery, beyond Violet Hill, near York, Sunday afternoon and arrested sixteen men ranging in age from 22 to 52 years. The police detail arrived on the scene in the midst of a crap game, according to information received here today.

Accompanying Corporal Kasparvich were Troopers Fox, Powell and Mitchell. Trooper Mitchell also was located in Gettysburg for some time, and was recently transferred to the Harrisburg headquarters.

From a reliable source it is learned that complaint had been made to the state police relative to alleged gambling in what is known as the old powder mill house and this resulted in a detail of the state troopers going to York and proceeding to the place and arresting those found there.

District Attorney W. W. Van Baman, of York, last night stated that he had no knowledge of the raid, or that such a visit had been planned by the state police. Interested parties were loath to talk about the matter, but it was ascertained that several of the men arrested claimed Baltimore, Maryland, as their residence, while the others stated they were from York.

Those claiming Baltimore as their home gave their names as being Oscar Miller and Charles Taylor. The other fourteen gave the following names: William Warner, Lewis Gotlieb, Martin E. Weimer, Charles Sharp, W. T. Patterson, Earl O. Herring, H. C. Kauffman, Thomas Romey, Peter Ross, C. E. Myers, Joe Walker, Edward Whye, Charles Smith and Samuel Lease, all of York.

Herring, Miller, Taylor, Ross, Myers and Smith are the men who are reported to have posted forfeits.

$25,000 SUIT FOR DAMAGES IS FILED HERE

Mrs. Maisie Brisbin, Near Pittsburgh, Sues Lancaster Woman For Damages.

Suit for $25,000 damages, growing out of an automobile accident six miles east of here, July 19, was instituted in the court of common pleas Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Maisie Brisbin, 38, of Bellevue, near Pittsburgh, against Christine Gerz, Lancaster.

So far as records show, this is the first time in the history of the Adams county courts that one woman has sued another for damages, arising out of an automobile accident.

Mrs. Brisbin, according to her statement of claim, filed with Prothonotary C. B. Yohe by J. Donald Swope, her local counsel, was a guest of A. L. Burrows, riding in the rear seat of his machine, traveling eastwardly on the Lincoln Highway.

Car Is Upset

At 11:45 o'clock, July 19, Mrs. Brisbin alleges that the automobile of Christine Gerz, of Lancaster, and driven by her, turned from its side of the road as it was traveling in a westerly direction, striking the Burrows machine in the center of the left side, turning it over.

According to Mrs. Brisbin's allegation, the Lancaster woman was operating her car in a negligent manner at the time.

In her statement of claim, the Bellevue woman sets forth that she suffered a cut six inches long on her forehead, a fracture from ear to ear around the front of her face, under her nose and "a terrible nervous shock."

She further alleges that she will be disfigured for life, unable to work, perhaps crippled for life, her earning power partially destroyed for all time and that she was at great expense for hospital and doctor bills.

Taken To Hospital

All of her injuries Mrs. Brisbin alleges were caused "through the negligence of the defendant in operating her automobile at a high, dangerous and unsafe rate of speed."

With Mrs. Brisbin and Mr. Burrows in the car at the time were Helen Brisbin, 18, and John Brisbin, 15. Franklin Sherman, of Ohio, and several other persons were in the Lancaster woman's machine. After the accident, Mrs. Brisbin, Helen Brisbin, Christine Gerz and Mr. Sherman were admitted to the Warner hospital here, but all were discharged within 24 hours.

It is learned that Mrs. Brisbin did not know she suffered a fractured "face" until she went to Philadelphia, where she was taken ill suddenly at the home of a sister. She was taken to a hospital, where X-ray pictures revealed the fracture from ear to ear, under her nose, which she sets forth in her statement of claim.

Summons Is Issued

A summons in the action has been issued by Prothonotary Yohe, returning December 21.

Mrs. Brisbin has employed as her counsel in Pittsburgh Rody P. Marshall, reputed to be one of the most influential trial lawyers in the state. Her statement of claim was prepared by him, and forwarded to Attorney Swope for filing. Mr. Swope will handle the local end of the case, including the trial.

Christine Gerz is said to have liability insurance on her automobile, and to own property in Lancaster.

THREE LANCASTER WOMEN ARE FACING TRIALS OF MURDER

(By Associated Press.)—Three Lancaster county women all accused of murder will be placed on trial at the quarter sessions court this week. A true bill was found this morning against Mrs. Emma Baxter, who is accused of killing a neighbor, Samuel Coffroad. She says she was shooting a chicken-hawk and that Coffroad was accidentally killed by her. A jury was completed by noon and the case started.

The two other women, Mrs. Susan Snyder and Mrs. Catharine Tracey, will be heard later. Mrs. Snyder is accused of killing Hiram Ulrich, with whom she lived. She claims self-defense.

NEW MAJESTIC

represented on the stage by their manager, W. E. Woodward. Mr. Sloan said in part:

"On behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, I want to extend to the Higgins Amusement Company a sincere welcome to Gettysburg and at the same time congratulate them as operators and the Hotel Gettysburg Company as owners on this magnificent theatre and hotel structure. It is without doubt one of the most progressive steps taken in Gettysburg in many years and you have our sincere wishes for success."

Congratulatory Messages
Mr. Woodward responded with a statement of his pleasure in being placed in charge of the Majestic which he said "is one of the most beautiful houses I have seen anywhere in my twelve years' experience in theatre management." He read telegrams from dozens of stars and famous producers, all expressing "sincere wishes for the success and prosperity" of the new enterprise.

One of the features of the evening was the numbers rendered by "Duke" Eide, of Shamokin, on the orchestral organ. His first number with accompanying slides, "The Hickville Wedding," was loudly applauded but the "hit" seemed to be his rendition of the popular number, "Sometime," with accompanying slides.

Cecil B. De Mille's master production, "The Road to Yesterday," a ten-reel film that had not yet made its premieres in metropolitan centers, was the screen attraction and was of the same high standard as the rest of the features of the evening. Mr. Eide's accompaniments on the organ, based on his interpretations, won him much admiration from the audience.

Many visitors from Shamokin and Philadelphia were in attendance at the opening. Manager Woodward and John F. Higgins, junior member of the Higgins Company, were congratulated on every side.

"We were well pleased with the opening and the response from the town and county to our efforts toward fulfilling our promises as to policy. We are delighted to have the opportunity of operating this beautiful theatre and want to again assure everybody that our policy of refined entertainment with beautiful music amidst delightful environment will always be maintained. We are very grateful for the turnout, the demonstration of welcome and everything. Mr. Woodward, who will be permanently located here, likes Gettysburg and the treatment he has been accorded here and is anxious to cooperate in every possible way toward the bigger and better Gettysburg." This was Mr. Higgins' statement after the first night's show.

As previously announced, the theatre management plans a nightly change of program and standard admission rates as were in effect on the opening night.

"The evening proved a revelation to those of us who attended and upon leaving that temple of entertainment to find ourselves on Carlisle street, we were sure we were in Gettysburg and more proud of it than ever before," is the way one of the first night patrons expressed it.

Shamokin attended the opening. Many visitors from Philadelphia of the new theatre. Among those present were Max Schmidt, Frank W. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Fuhrmann, Harry P. Fuhrmann, J. L. Fuhrmann, D. W. Kearney, Max P. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Conway, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wert, Duke Eide, Misses Mary Fuhrmann, Gretchen Fuhrmann, Mildred Graeber, Margaret Gable, Rose C. Deitrich, Evelyn D. Erdman, Emilie P. Schmidt, M. C. Gable, Mrs. Thomas Ryder, of Shamokin; Nicholas Huber, Mrs. Katie Huber, Mrs. Hilda Huber, A. O. Larson and F. E. Vokes, of the Austin Company, contractors; Edward Osterhoff, Arthur Tosch, W. H. Lee, the architect and his field representative, J. C. Welker, of Philadelphia.

She was admitted to the Warner Hospital at 3 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, and today is reported to be resting comfortably.

Before and After

From its role as an agent of death and destruction, in which it exacted a terrible toll during the World War, the one time tank of the battlefields, in different guise, today is an agent of progress. On the farm and in the city, it has been utilized as a powerful arm of industry. During the long years of the World War, tank and tractor brought to mind the Argonne, the Meuse, Verdun and other famous centers of battle. The toll these messengers of death exacted was enormous. Today they, in their original form, are harbingers of peace, prosperity and progress as they are utilized on the farm and in the city in various lines of industry.

WOMAN ATTACKER STILL AT LARGE

Farmhouse Bandit-tramp, Who Bound Woman, Ransacked House, Burned Barn, Eludes Posse.

A posse of twenty men under the direction of Cumberland County Sheriff Rippey Shearer, after twenty-four hours' search, have been unable to find any trace of the tramp bandit who bound Mrs. George Shannon in her home near Carlisle and set fire to the barn on the Shannon farm.

The man, who is described as a young man about 25 years old, smooth shaven, about 140 pound in weight, wearing a light coat and dark trousers, old shoes and dark glasses, called at the Shannon home Saturday morning. Mrs. Shannon had just returned from taking her husband to the street car line at Churchtown and was alone when her assailant appeared at the kitchen door asking for food and money.

When he was told that there was no money in the house he bound and gagged Mrs. Shannon, who is 70 years old, rummaged the house, finding about $15, and fired the barn. Neighbors attracted to the Shannon farm by the fire released Mrs. Shannon and took the gag from her mouth. The woman helped her neighbors in saving stock from the barn.

The barn was destroyed along with hay, grain and implements with damage estimated at more than $5000. The horse and other stock escaped. Mrs. Shannon suffered greatly from shock and is in the care of physicians.

Wear Mustache, Bishop's Advice

(By Associated Press.)—Fayetteville, N. C., Nov. 16.—Bishop Collins Denny advises every man to wear a mustache as the last distinctive badge of masculinity that women have left him. "Wear one," he told the delegates assembled here for the North Carolina Methodist conference. "That's all the women have left us. They cut their hair and wear men's clothes, but they can't wear a mustache. It is your badge of masculinity." The bishop wears one himself.

ISSUE POULTRY WARNING TODAY

Agriculture Department Warns Shippers of Poultry, About Dealing With Unscrupulous Merchants.

Prompted by the approach of Thanksgiving, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture issued today a warning to all shippers of poultry for the Thanksgiving market to be extremely careful about the reliability of the commission merchants to whom shipments are made. Unscrupulous firms are especially active during the holiday season and frequently mislead farmers by promising high prices.

Following the Thanksgiving marketing season a year ago, numerous complaints reached the State Bureau of Markets regarding the activities of several Philadelphia commission firms. These firms secured the patronage of inexperienced shippers by making misleading predictions of high returns. In several cases no settlement was made, and numerous other farmers received less money than they would have secured if they had patronized their usual market.

Dealers Cooperate
Secretary of Agriculture F. P. Willis states that this warning must not be taken as a general criticism of the trade. The State Department of Agriculture has the cooperation of the reliable dealers and every effort is being made to protect poultry shippers against a recurrence of last year's experience with irresponsible dealers. The selection of a commission merchant is always a rather difficult problem for farmers who are only marketing their products occasionally. These farmers, as well as those who are not satisfied with present dealers, are urged to get in touch with their county agents and local bankers, or to make inquiry to the Bureau of Markets at Harrisburg. It is always best and most profitable to establish the reliability of a commission man who is handling the farmer's business for the first time, before any shipment is made to him.

AUTHORSHIP OF POEMS DOUBTED

Edwin Markham, Who Spoke Here Doubts Whether 12-Year-Old Girl Is Author of Poems.

Doubts about the authorship of internationally famous poems credited to 12-year-old Nathalia Crane, of Brooklyn, New York, are raised by Edwin Markham, honorary president of the poetry society of America and winner of last year's $200 poetry review prize, who spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience in Brua Chapel here last Wednesday night.

Over his signature in the Brooklyn Eagle, Mr. Markham wrote Saturday: "Unquestionably the whole thing is a genial hoax fabricated, perhaps, by four young men and two young women while lingering over the wine and walnuts—all of them distinguished poets, with dexterous pens, and all determined to break the monotony of the hour with this delectable deception. This is a moment in merry America."

"The sophisticated viewpoint of sex history and archeology place them beyond the reach of any juvenile mind."

Later Mr. Markham, in a statement in the New York World, qualified his views by saying: "Extraordinary Girl
"And yet it is entirely possible that Nathalia Crane has written these poems with her own mind and pen. In that case, she is the most extraordinary girl in America and I wish her good fortune on the path of the poetic life."

Some doubters have been trying to locate William Rose Benet, who wrote the introduction to the first book, but he could not be found to throw any light on the subject.

Clarence P. Crane, Nathalia's father, said "Mr. Markham, an old man and dean of poets in the United States, has made an unprovoked attack upon my daughter, treating her work as a jest and subjecting her to the whim of his opinion."

"If this is the way great poets are supposed to act, and if this is the courtesy of the craft, then I must conclude that the whole brood are a pretty poor lot."

"Mr. Markham owes my daughter an apology."

Pierce had not tasted liquor since his last farewell to Laure. Three weeks of hard work in the open air had effected a chemical change in his make-up, a purification of his tissues, and as a result Best's liquor mounted quickly to his head and warmed his blood. When he had emptied his glass Laure saw that it was promptly refilled.

"So you've cut out the stampeding," Morris continued. "Good! You've got sense. Let the rough-necks do it. This here Front Street is the best pay-street in the Klondike and it won't pinch out. Why? Because every miner empties his poke into it." The speaker nodded, and leaned more intimately against Phillips. "They bring in their Bonanza dust and their El Dorado nuggets and salt our sluices. That's the system. It's simpler as falling down a log. What?"

"Come to the good news," Laure urged. "This little woman hates you, don't she?" Best winked. "Just like luck, and—I hope you strike it rich." When he had gone Tom shook his head. His face was clouded with regret and, too, with a vague expression of surprise. "Too bad," he said. "I didn't think he was that kind." "Sure!" Jerry agreed. "I thought he'd make good."

CHAPTER XX

Morris Best's new partner was a square gambler, so called. People there were who sneered at this description and considered it a contradiction as absurd as a square circle or an elliptical cube. An elementary knowledge of the principles of geometry and of the retail liquor business proved the non-existence of such a thing as a straight crook, so they maintained. Be that as it may, Ben Miller certainly differed from the usual run of sporting-men, and he possessed peculiar ideas regarding the conduct of his trade. Those ideas were almost puritanical in their nature. Proprietorship of

He motioned to the tiny little office which was curtained off from general view.

Roulette declined with a smile. "I really want work as a dealer. That's the only thing I can do well. I came here first because you have a good reputation."

"Kirby's kid don't have to deal nothing. She's good for any kind of a stake on his name."

"Dad would be glad to hear that. He was a great man. He ran straight." Roulette's eyes had become misty at Miller's indirect tribute to her father; nevertheless, she summoned a smile and went on: "He never borrowed, and neither will I. If you can't put me to work I'll try somewhere else."

"How did you get down from White Horse?" Miller inquired, curiously.

"Poleon Doret brought me."

"I know Doret. He's ace."

"Can you really deal?" Best broke in.

"Come, I'll prove that I can."

Roulette started for the gambling-

G-BURG BAFFLED BY ROANOKE TEAM

Old Dominion Aggregation Holds Orange And Blue To Scoreless Tie In Virginia City.

By The Shadow

The invasion of the South by Gettysburg College came about last week-end when the aggregation from the battlefield institution played Roanoke College in Virginia. To the handful of followers the game was a bitter disappointment but as one bozo ejaculated in the past—there is no use crying over spilt milk—so just a story of the game will follow.

It was a fight on Roanoke's part but Gettysburg took everything too easily in the first quarter and was outplayed. The Bullets seemed to be a little overconfident and the grey-jerseyed lads from the South made them look bad in the first period. Shortly after the opening kickoff a punt was fumbled on Gettysburg's three yard line and Gettysburg was put on the defensive. Gettysburg punted and the ball was returned to the 30 yard mark. After a few tries at the line and a forward Roanoke made their only attempt to score when a drop kick was tried and which fell short. The ball was kept in Gettysburg territory most of this period and things looked rather bad for the orange and blue squad.

Second Quarter

After an exchange of punts in the second quarter Miller's second kick was short and Dick Wells returned to the 45 yard line. Roanoke then was penalized five yards for offside and on the next play Wells again came through for the battlefield team with a 22 yard line off right tackle. A Gettysburg substitute, Charles Hull, was sent into the game and after having a little illegal confab with his fellow Gettysburgians the Orange Blue squad was fined fifteen yards.

This proved too big a loss for Gettysburg and Spangler essayed a drop kick that was very near to being good. Monk kicked from the forty-five yard line. The ball was brought out to the twenty yard line and Roanoke punted. Gettysburg immediately opened up an overhead attack which was cut short when Ellicock intercepted a heave on his twenty yard line. Roanoke again punted and again Gettysburg started an aerial attack this time with better success. Spangler tossed the oval to Wells who ran as far as the Maroon four yard line. Three bangs at the line had added about three yards and everybody was waiting for the first touch down of the game when the timekeeper spoiled everything and tooted his mouthpiece. This was one of the tough breaks of the game.

Third Quarter

Miller's good distance kicks kept Gettysburg from getting real close to the southerner's goal line. The nearest approach was when Spangler intercepted a pass and ran 23 yards to Roanoke's 40 yard line. Fischer, Wells and Tuckey gained enough yardage to make it a first down but the advance was checked when Hurt intercepted a pass and ran back to the thirty-six yard marker.

Fourth Quarter

Ellicock intercepted another pass on the visitor's 38 yard marker, but the Maroons were forced to kick. The kick was one of those rare 80 yard boots—forty up and forty down—this gave Gettysburg possession on the 40 yard line. Alf Jones then threw a pretty pass to Bender who was on the 24 yard line. Again Ellicock broke up the advance with another interception of a pass. After an exchange of punts the visitors opened up with passes. Fischer snatched the oval for a gain of fifteen yards which placed the ball on the 31 yard line. Another pass, Spangler to Bender, was good for nine yards. With only one yard to go Gettysburg tried to make another pass good and it was grounded. Gettysburg lost the ball on this play. Ellicock fumbled on the next play, however, and Bill Fischer pounced upon the oval at the ten yard mark. It seemed as if Gettysburg ought to be able to score a touchdown. However, something seemed to be working wrong when the Bullets came near the southerner's goal line.

The timing of the plays were "terrible" and all caution seemed to be thrown to the winds.

Spangler made only a yard and a short pass to Bender added three more. At this point of the game, Beare, the 285 pound guard for Roanoke, was put out of the game and the southerners were penalized half the distance to the goal line. Two plays and the ball was not a bit more than four inches from the goal line.

Something here happened that chilled every fiber of the few Gettysburgians who were at the game. Gettysburg who had the driving power against Dickinson, Lehigh, Muhlenberg and all the others could not gain four inches through the Maroon forwards. Something was radically wrong for the team didn't function at this point as a well trained unit. Suffice to say that Gettysburg failed pitifully at this crucial stage of the game. Another rush was stopped short and before Gettysburg had a chance to take their fourth down the whistle blew and ended the game.

It was a disappointing battle from the standpoint of the driving power of Gettysburg. To fall down when only inches were needed for a win showed that something or other was missing in this game.

The team played good football after the first quarter. The line stopped all advances of the Maroon backs and Captain Rinehart, playing his best game on Saturday, after taking the ball nearly the entire length of the field, made a goal unassisted. H. Slaybaugh played one of his best games of the season by booting the ball out of dangerous territory. E. Slaybaugh playing a spectacular game on the end was credited with the first goal. Sell, also in the fame from start to finish, played a wonderful game which contributed to a victory for Biglerville. Wagner did his best to bring about victory.

THE NEW THEATRE

A new chapter in the history of Gettysburg was written Saturday evening when the Majestic Theatre, Gettysburg's third and newest playhouse, was thrown open for the entertainment of the public.

The interior of the theatre was a revelation to those who attended the shows the first night and had an opportunity, most of them, of viewing the beautifully appointed interior of the theatre for the first time.

The confidence of those who own the Hotel Gettysburg in the people of this vicinity to appreciate the beautiful and the grand ought to be extremely gratifying to all citizens alike, whether theatre goers or not. The capacity audiences which greeted the first night's show and the many spontaneous expressions of approval are sufficient evidence of justification of the action of those who visioned the new Hotel Gettysburg and its many features to make the institution an actual reality in such a short time.

With extensive improvements to the Lincoln Way and the Strand theatres having been completed recently, Gettysburg can look forward to a period of high class entertainment furnished amidst the most pleasant and comfortable surroundings.

Cultural influences are indeed at work for good in Gettysburg and Adams county. The dreams of those who foresee a bigger and greater Gettysburg are a step nearer reality, when enterprises such as the new Hotel Gettysburg, with its fine theatre and other attractive features, actually take shape and are launched most auspiciously upon the road to commercial success and prosperity, as the new Hotel Gettysburg in its entirety gives every evidence of being.

A SAD CASE

I'm sorry for my banker. If his dreadful plight I'd known, I never should have called on him to ask him for a loan; He greeted me most kindly and I thought my chances good When I asked him for assistance, but he sighed: "I wish I could."

His pleasant face turned solemn and his eyes filled up with tears, His voice seemed strangely plaintive as it fell upon my ears; He started in to tell me of the many loans he'd made,

And he sobbed upon my shoulder: "They will never be repaid."

"My boy," he slowly whimpered, and I shuddered at his groans, I've done nothing all this morning but deny requests for loans." Then his tears upon the carpet fell like raindrops on a lake,

And I begged him to excuse me, for I thought his heart would break.

"I'm a man in need," I told him, "but I'm tender-hearted, too,

And it hurts me to consider that I've brought such grief to you.

Dry those tears and cease that sobbing. As a friend I wish to rank,

Should I raise that money elsewhere I will lend it to the bank."

IZZY AND MOE ARE DISCHARGED

New York, Nov. 16.—Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, the noted New York prohibition agents, were handed their blue envelopes Friday. At midnight Sunday their services with the prohibition enforcement unit of New York terminated, as will those of 168 other agents in the second district.

About 140 of them will be taken back later, but Izzy and Moe are afraid they will be overlooked when reinstatements are handed out. They fear they have been too efficient in press-agenting themselves and jealous in consequence made superiors have in.

Certainly Izzy and Moe knew how to get their names in the papers. For five years they roamed about New York and the country at large exercising their vivid powers of imagination and description and entertaining newspaper reporters with tales of superior cunning and mystery.

Both Izzy and Moe came out of the East Side, recommended by Republican County Chairman Sam Koenig. Izzy still lives there, but Moe has moved up on Riverside Drive. They were paired from the first and it was not long before from the accounts in the newspapers, the public was fairly justified in believing that the entire prohibition enforcement unit consisted of Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith.

DISTRESSING!

Baltimore, October 7, 1817. On Saturday last, at 8 o'clock A. M., four separate shocks, resembling such as are occasioned by earthquakes, were felt in Baltimore, accompanied by explosions like those of heavy cannon at a distance. Our streets were soon filled by citizens, who accosted each other in language:

"Did you feel the shock? It must have been an earthquake."

While this and similar conversation was going on other shocks were felt accompanied by a rattle of the wind and doors in the adjoining houses, and attended again by the deep and hollow thunders above mentioned. While our fellow citizens experienced such convulsions and were anxiously enquiring into the cause, a dark sullen cloud of smoke was distinctly seen rising in the north that explained at once this alarming phenomenon.

The powder mills belonging to Mr. Levering, of this city, about 7 miles from Baltimore were blown up. It appears that the labourers had returned to the mill from breakfast for the purpose of changing the pot, just before this alarming accident happened. The overseer declared it as his opinion that the men must have accidentally carried some sparks into the mill, which might have alighted upon the sleeves of their coats or fallen on their pantaloons—thus far the declaration of the overseer.

Five men have been by this tremendous accident launched into eternity.

How many on the perusal of such intelligence will be ready to drop a tear for those unhappy victims who were thus hurried into eternity with so little preparation! Tremble for yourselves!—Death hovers over your heads unseen.

No star ever rose or set without influence somewhere. —Meredith.

Gettysburg And Pennsylvania Rate High In World of Trapshooting

Pennsylvania is rated as one of the greatest trapshoot states in America and Gettysburg is one of the most active clubs in the state. These assertions have been made by nationally known trapshooters who are familiar with conditions throughout the country.

Two registered tournaments were held here; one early in the season being a one-day event at which eighty shooters participated and a three-day event in September which attracted some of the best marksmen in the country. Five state champions shot during the tournament here and more than 100 registered entrants participated.

The Pennsylvania state shoot, generally conceded to be the biggest trapshooting event of the year with the exception of the Grand American will be held in Gettysburg next June. Eleven High Men

The eleven high men in the state are rated as follows:

|                      | Shot at | Broke | Average |
|----------------------|---------|-------|---------|
| Crothers, S. M.      | 4545    | 4432  | .9751   |
| Kessler, D. A.       | 1625    | 1569  | .9655   |
| Hickman, Ad.         | 1200    | 1155  | .9625   |
| Cochran, W. B.       | 3770    | 3618  | .9596   |
| Heil, Allen          | 1420    | 1361  | .9584   |
| Baldwin, Geo.        | 3445    | 3298  | .9573   |
| Johnston, J. R.      | 1950    | 1852  | .9497   |
| Henline, Sr., C. D.  | 1500    | 1423  | .9486   |
| Hellyer, Ed.         | 1050    | 996   | .9485   |
| Elliot, W. J.        | 2500    | 2371  | .9484   |
| Hawkins, J. M. (Pro) | 1670    | 1608  | .9628   |

Steve Crothers, Chestnut Hill, has been a wonder this year at the traps. Steve won about everything at the recent G. A. H. worth winning. He copped both the State Champions race and the North American Clay Bird Championship. He broke 200 straight each day, which, by the way was a world's record. Steve averaged .9698 last year to cop the Pennsylvania State high average. This year he again will have this honor and will stand high in the first ten high shooters of America when the final count is taken in January. Crothers won the Pennsylvania State Championship this year with 198 breaks out of 200.

Runner Up To Crothers

D. A. Kessler, Mt. Carmel, has had a great year at the traps. Kessler is runner up to Crothers. Last year D. A. only averaged .9450. He won the state handicap championship from the 23 yard line with 98 breaks out of 100. This is a record for 1925 from the 23 yard mark. Ad Hickman, Dravosburg, is the most improved shot in the Keystone state. Last year he averaged 91 per cent, this year he is over the 96 mark.

W. B. Cochran, the well known Kenneth Square trap expert is holding down fourth place. In July W. B. had an average of 97 per cent. He has turned in some excellent scores. At the Betterton shoot in July he broke 100 straight the second day, and 149 out of 150 the first day with a straight run of 200. Allen Heil, Allentown, closely follows Cochran with .9584 on 1420 registered targets. George Baldwin, West Chester, runner up in the State Championship broke 197 at his state shoot. He has a good handicap average this year and will be close to the top when the bell is rung in January. On one occasion he broke 50 straight from the 22 yard line. J. R. Johnston, Jr., well known smoky city trap star stands seventh on the list. Last year Johnson averaged .9691 on 1200 targets.

Popular Director

C. D. Henline, Bradford, President of the Pennsylvania State Association averages .9486 to take eighth place. C. D. shot at but 400 targets last year and did not come in on the high guns. Ed. Hellyer, Alexandria, closely follows Henline. Ed. has always been a good shot. He copped the Pennsylvania State Championship last year with 197. W. J. Elliott, Coatesville, stands in tenth position with .9484. J. M. Hawkins, Pittsburgh, the well known tradesman leads the professionals with .9628.

In the old days Pennsylvania was one of the leading trapshooting states in America. She fell off badly with registered shoots for a few years but has come back with a bang this year. The good work of some live wire shooters are responsible for this. Last year the Keystone state held 23 registered shoots at which 280,000 targets were trapped. This year to date they have held 40 registered shoots at which over 400,000 targets have been thrown. Last year they boasted of 444 shooting members in the A. T. This year they have 831 to date. 108 of these being life members in the Amateur Trap Shooting Association.

Instead of ranking fifth state in America they closely follow Ohio, the leading state where the permanent home is located.

Some of the best informed trapshooting men in the country live in the Keystone state. One of the best is John Eshelman, Lancaster, who is known by every trapshooter in the country. Mr. Eshelman was elected director for the eastern states at the last meeting held by the National body of trapshooters.

IS 86 BUT FINDS TIME TO CARRY ON

Greensburg.—Advanced age has proved no barrier to the varied activities of Mrs. Margaret Jane Burrell, of Stahlstown, who at 86 is among Westmoreland county's oldest residents. She finds time to help with the housework, pieces quilts and on Sunday teaches the beginners' class at the local Sunday school, a post she has occupied for sixty years. During the past year she pieced three quilts and quilted two of them.

Besides teaching the Sunday school class, Mrs. Burrell is active in other church work, being president of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church. She also takes part in other congregational work.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

By Stanley "Beer Rush" Staged Near Kensington

Kensington, Pa., Nov. 16.—A "beer-rush" was staged here early Saturday by scores of residents in the railroad section. Shortly after state police had failed to find a freight car load of beer, Federal prohibition agents from Pittsburgh located the car and arrested eight men who were unloading it. The barrels were smashed and nearby residents rushed to the scene with pots and pails in an effort to salvage some of the beverage.

HEALTH TALK

The health talk of the Pennsylvania Department of Health is prepared this week by Dr. Mary Riggs Noble, chief of the pre-school section and special agent to the Federal Children's Bureau. Dr. Noble says:—

"Everything comes 'canned' these days. Canned music, canned food and medicines. People are package crazy. Whether it is their own fault is a question, and really it does not much matter. Most of the food bought in small containers is safe to eat. Some of the canned music is pleasant to the ear, but many of the patent medicines with their attractive labels need a great deal of scrutiny.

"Not that all patent medicines are harmful, nor indeed that the major portion of them in liquid form contains an abundance of alcohol. No, the greatest danger does not lie in these matters. Rather is it to be found in the lure of self-diagnosis and treatment with their possible calamitous conclusion.

"While the medicine with the gold-leaf trimmings may be attractive to the eye and cost only ten times more than it is really worth, the hazard lies in the lack of professional medical advice as to the symptoms involved. Many of the ordinary signs and reactions in the physical economy have just as many different causes for their existence. And it is right here that the patent medicine is likely to fail and do damage. A headache is one thing, but the cause of the headache is another. Causes are the doctor's interest first, then the cure.

"While confessedly it is nice to shop and take the shortcuts by buying packages all ready wrapped up, it is exceedingly poor form when applied to the ills of the human body. To sit and wait your turn in a busy doctor's office and then go through the necessary complications of diagnosis and advice is not as easy as walking into a drug store and asking for a bottle off the shelf. But isn't it a little safer?

"The physician is in your community in the first instance to protect your health and make you well if ill. The patent medicine is on the shelf to take the money out of your pocket. Which one of these factors is more likely to give you what you need? Think this over!"

Mingie a little folly with your wisdom; a little nonsense now and then is pleasant.

THE development of electricity in Japan is one of the outstanding and remarkable features of that remarkable country. Most people in America will be surprised at the statement that there is today probably a greater proportion of houses lighted electrically in Japan than in any other country in the world—not even excepting the United States. Practically all of her large factories use electrically driven machinery. By the end of 1923, investment in Japan's electric industry had mounted to well over a billion dollars and in total generating capacity she was out-ranked only by the United States and Germany. The unique appeal and picturesqueness of Japan—the

Mr. Walker earlier this year spent some time in Japan investigating with the aid of American and Japanese experts various signs of the Japanese electrical industry and was in touch with certain Japanese electric companies whose Japanese had been sort of things the Westerner pictures as typical of that country—are still there, but the development of her electrical industry is indicative of Japan's attainments in our present day industrial world.

How Japan Developed Electric Power

The industry had its start in Japan almost as long ago as in any other country. Small units were established in many cities in the late 80s and early 90s, the first one in Tokyo in 1887. These early companies generated their power almost entirely in small steam stations. Water-power was not then being used as it is today. To carry power over transmission lines for more than a very few miles was out of the question because of the loss of power in transmission. But the development of long-distance transmission, which in itself is one of the outstanding accomplishments of recent years, has now progressed to such a point that Japan energy is transported economically for a distance of approximately 200 miles at a tension of 154,000 volts, and there is active discussion now of high-tension transmission lines of even greater voltage. The counterpart of this, the much discussed "super-power" system, is already in existence in Japan and its extension is a part of the future program in the industry. This development gives most of the large companies the advantages of connecting with the lines of other companies and of interchange of power on a mutually advantageous basis.

As a country situated geographically much like England, Japan's great progress, almost certainly, is to be along industrial lines. Her people are splendid industrial, as well as agricultural, workers, and in view of this industrial progress it is a natural and, in fact, essential development that her electrical industry should be pushed forward not unlike the way in which it has been advanced in the United States and in certain parts of Europe. The electrical industry in Japan fortunately recognizes its importance and is continuing to increase its facilities to take advantage of this constantly growing demand.

Control of Industry in Strong Hands

In the United States the principle of consolidation of small electric and certain other utility companies into fewer and larger companies has been demonstrated to be economically sound. Its usual result is better service at lower cost to the consumer and at the same time greater assurance of a fair return to the owners and operators of the properties. This same development has taken place in Japan, where the electric industry now to a great extent is under the control of a few large, well-managed companies. Their inter-connected systems serve many millions of people and a wide range of industries in districts covering large areas. This diversification of load in Japan, as in the United States, has given the electrical industry certain of its most essential elements of stability and strength.

American Influence in Industry
The influence of America in the industry is immediately apparent to anyone visiting Japan's electrical properties. While one sees British, German and Japanese equipment, the names of the largest American companies manufacturing electrical equipment, turbines, boilers and the like are to be seen almost everywhere. Operations are carried on almost exclusively by Japanese engineers, but one usually finds that the head men, and many if not most of the younger engineers, have had some of their training in American universities and perhaps also in the best of our own electric companies. In going into the electric stations in Japan, the equipment and general plant construction are so much like those in the United States that the American visitor has to think twice to realize that he is not at home.

Importance of United States to Japan

It is quite natural that we in America should think of any other part of the world in terms of their importance to us rather than in terms of our importance to them.

But it may not be uninteresting to turn it around; to consider the importance of the United States to Japan. Take the figures of her foreign trade, a matter of basic importance to Japan and on which she is working with characteristic diligence. They are illuminating and significant. In 1924 the United States sold Japan less than 6 per cent. of our total exports. But Japan in the same year bought over 27 per cent. of her foreign purchases in the United States. We bought from Japan in the same year approximately 9.5 per cent. of our total imports (not a small proportion to buy from a single country), but Japan sold us over 41 per cent. of her total overseas shipments. Her trade with the Asiatic continent is large, but the United States bought over 41 per cent. of her total, as against less than 59 per cent. for the rest of the world.

In the matter of capital, within about a year and a half the Japanese Government has floated an issue of $150,000,000 of its Government bonds. Within approximately the past year, in addition to certain bank and private loans, there have been placed in this market five separate issues of Japan's electric companies, totalling $81,500,000.

Attitude Toward American and British Capital

One of the most outstanding facts in Japan today is the attitude of their financiers, business men, and governmental authorities toward American and British capital. No reasonable support is being withheld by them, and the requirements of our own and British bankers and business men are being studied with the idea of meeting all the legitimate requirements of our markets. American, British, and Japanese interests are already working side by side in more than one situation of importance.

Financing of Electrical Industry

It is conservatively estimated that the electrical industry expands in Japan at the rate of from 10 per cent. to 15 per cent. each year, entailing the investment of between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 of new capital annually. But by far the greater part of the development of the electric industry in Japan has been financed by the Japanese themselves, and mainly through issues of common stock.

This has resulted in the establishment of a firm equity, or what is sometimes called a cushion, in the largest and best companies. The laws of Japan require such companies to have at least as much paid-up capital stock as funded debt. The conservative character of this requirement is made evident from the fact that in the United States it is comparatively rare for our own large and eminently sound and stable electric companies to have as much capital stock as funded debt.

The four largest electric enterprises of Japan, the Tokyo, Toho, Daido (Great Consolidated), and Ujigawa companies are already known in the American security market. They rank high in the best informed engineering and investment circles in London, and certain of them are known in governmental quarters in London in connection with financing under the British Trade Facilities Act. But it is not uninteresting or unimportant to know that at home, in Tokyo and Osaka, the big financial centers of Japan, where the intimate details of each company are well known, each of these four companies now known to the American market is regarded as eminently sound and representative of the best type of Japanese enterprise.

Seeks Trousseau For Bride; Loses Her And Freedom

John Miller, of Muir, Schuylkill county, yesterday confessed, the state police say, that he had committed a robbery to obtain his proposed bride's trousseau.

He lost not only his freedom, but also his bride. Mary Sipp, daughter of James Sipp, of Muir, whom he was engaged to marry, jilted him Saturday. Her father, James Sipp, furnished the information that led to Miller's arrest.

According to the state police, Miller's story is that on Thursday night he broke into the store of Wasserverg and Brothers, Tremont, thirteen miles over the mountain from his home in Muir, and took $500 worth of wearing apparel. He said he wanted to obtain wedding clothes for his wife-to-be, according to the police, and that he took the merchandise over the mountains to Mary Sipp's home.

BLAME PILOT IN WRECK OF TRAIN

Thomas J. Carroll Formerly Charged With Manslaughter In Jersey; Ten Are Killed.

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 16.—Named in ten warrants charging manslaughter, Thomas J. Carroll, engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad's Mercantile Express, which crashed into the rear of the Washington Express near Plainsboro, N. J. Thursday, killing ten persons, was surrendered at 9 o'clock Saturday morning to Middlesex county authorities here.

This was announced Thursday night by railroad officials, who said they would furnish the expected bail of $10,000 for Carroll's release.

Each nine of the warrants was made out in the name of a victim of the wreck. The tenth was a John Doe warrant to represent the tenth victim, who is still unidentified. Is used by Justice of the Peace Charles Sedon, of New Brunswick, at the request of County Prosecutor Joseph Strickler, the warrants charge that Carroll "did willfully kill and slay these people."

Earlier in the day John P. Maybury, head of the railroad department of the Public Utility Commission, charged that responsibility for the disaster lay entirely on Carroll's shoulders. Railroad officials had previously declared he was to blame.

Imagine a composite of "Blood and Sand" and "The Sheik" with the best features of both pictures welded into one gorgeous Spanish romance and you have—"The Spaniard."

"The Spaniard" is "The Sheik" of 1925. It is an even stronger story, a better picture. Raoul Walsh, director of "The Thief of Bagdad," made the picture from Juanita Savage's amazing novel.

The story from start to finish is full of drama; the settings are magnificent and the costuming a modern fashion show. Its theme has to do with the fanning of a beautiful flirt by a notorious bull fighter who turns out to be a member of the nobility.

A tale of love and daring and high-hearted romance. Ricardo Cortez is "The Spaniard"; Jetta Goudal, the ravishing French beauty, is the girl. Noah Beery has a fine bandit role.

NEW DUNLOP WORLD RECORD

now every 2 1/4 seconds someone buys a Dunlop Tire!

HIGHER and higher mounts the world-wide demand for tire value such as only Dunlop can give. In 30 months, Dunlop approval has swept these United States.

Even the amazing record which made the industry gasp—"A Dunlop bought every 2 1/4 seconds"—has been clipped a quarter of a second.

Not even the huge production of Dunlop's nine great plants could satisfy this tremendous world preference. Additions have been necessary—old production peaks passed—Dunlop has again made tire history.

All this has happened, because tire users know that, whether it be for passenger car, truck, bus, or bicycle, Dunlop Tires represent the difference between what is merely good, and what is best.
